

1. At all times relevant to this Indictment, ADEDAYO JOHN, OLUWADAMILOLA AKINPELU, KAZEEM RAHEEM, MORAKINYO GBEYIDE, WARRIS ADENUGA, a/k/a "Blue," LATEEF GOLOBA, SAMSONDEEN GOLOBA, OLAWALE OLANIYAN, OLAWOYIN PETER OLAREWAJU, and EMMANUEL ORONSAYE-AJAYI, the defendants, and others known and unknown, were members of a criminal enterprise (the "Enterprise") that has committed a series of frauds, primarily business email compromises and romance

scams, against individuals and businesses located across the United States, including in the Southern District of New York.

Overview of the Conspiracy

2. The objective of the Enterprise's business email compromise fraud scheme was to trick businesses into transferring funds into accounts controlled by the Enterprise. Members of the Enterprise generally carried out the scheme in one of two ways. One method members of the Enterprise used was to compromise actual email accounts of employees of a victim company or third parties engaged in business with a victim company. The other method, which was sometimes used in conjunction with compromising email accounts, was to create email accounts with slight variations of email accounts used by employees of a victim company or third parties engaged in business with a victim company, in order to "spoof" or impersonate those employees or third parties. These fake email accounts were specifically designed to trick other employees of the company or third parties engaged in business with a victim company into thinking the fake email accounts were authentic.

3. The compromised email accounts and fake email accounts were used to send instructions to transfer funds via wire, ACH, cashier's check, or other means to certain bank accounts under Enterprise control. By utilizing this method of deception, the Enterprise sought to trick the victims into transferring millions of dollars to bank accounts the victims believed were under the control of legitimate recipients of the funds as part of normal business operations, when in fact the bank accounts were under the control of members of the Enterprise.

4. The Enterprise conducted the romance scams primarily by using electronic messages sent via email, text messaging, social media, or online dating websites that deceived the victims, many of whom were vulnerable, older men and women, into believing the victims were in romantic relationships with fake identities assumed by members of the Enterprise. Once members of the Enterprise gained the trust of the victims using the fake identities, they used false pretenses to cause the victims to transfer funds via wire, ACH, cashier's check, or other means to bank accounts the victims believed were controlled by their romantic partners or to bank accounts of third parties whom the victims believed were assisting their romantic partners, when in fact the bank accounts were controlled by members of the Enterprise. At times, members of the Enterprise also induced victims to receive fraudulent proceeds in the victims' own bank accounts and to subsequently transfer those funds to bank accounts under the control of members of the Enterprise.

5. As a result of these frauds, more than 50 victims transferred more than $9 million to bank accounts under the control of members of the Enterprise.
